sey-Ryan Fight Stopped by the Mayor. NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15 .- Andy Bowen, better known locally than any puglist in the country, has fought his last fight. The famous light weight has been laid low by the blow of George Lavigne, known as the "Saginaw Kid," and prize fighting at New Orleans, from immediate indications, has received a blow beneath the belt. The contest, last night, which was one of twenty-five rounds for a $3,000 purse, was a generously attended affair and congregated about the ring were some of the best-known fighters and sports of the country. It was a battle that meant a great deal for Bowen, as McAuliffe's star is on the decline and Bowen was one of three or four light weights of celebrity who were anxious to get into the shoes of the peerless light-weight champion. Lavigne was equally ambitious and it required no stretch of the imagination yesterday to anticipate a very fierce and very interesting fight with a decisive building. When the ambulance reached Bowen's home, he was laid upon the bed and Dr. E. Denegre Martin was called in. Bowen's wife was waiting for him to return from the fight, hopeful that he would come to her a victor, and home idea may be formed of the shock to her nerves when he was brought into the house all but dead. But she bore up bravely under the strain, and with the devotion that had always marked her conduct toward him, she helped the physicians and the friends, who came from all sides, to make the sorely wounded puglist as comfortable as possible under the tracic circumstances.

Hetwen 2 and 7 o'clock this morning faithful watchers stood by the dying man's side, hoping against hope that his eye would show some signs of intelligence. At 3 o'clock Dr. Finney thought that howen had improved, and at that hour he did not believe that the fight would have a fatal termination. In reply to a request from the Chief of Police, he sent a certificate that the pugillist was better. It was a message of relief to Lawigne. Referee Duffy, and Lavigne's seconds, who had been arrested when Howen's condition became alarming, and who were anxiously waiting to hear that the unconscious fighter had come back to life. The doctors remained with Howen to the end, with his wife also standing by his bedside. Just as the hands of the clock were creeping around to 7 Mrs. Bowen leaned over the bed.

"Oh, Andy, say something to me," she said, and her ears were strained to catch the word. Howen shivered and groomed, his frame shook, and then, without ever having come tack to consciousness after Lavigne had landed the blow on the jaw, he breathed his last.

As soon as Bowen died a message was sent to the police in turn quickly sent word to the Coroner. The United Press reporter was at the Bowen evidence just as the pugilist breathed his last.

As soon as Bowen died a message was sent to the police in turn quickly sent word to the Coroner. The dead man showed signs of the rough treatment he had received. Those who saw the fight said taking any action. Later, however, he revoked the license.

The news of Howen's death was made known to Lavigne and his party shortly after it had been communicated by telephone to the Central station. Lavigno had been detained at the station with his seconds and attendants all night, and he had alept but little. He was greatly shocked when he heard the news, and expressed his sympathy for Howen's wife. In answer to a question he said that he did not feel that he had been the direct cause of the death of the pugliss, or, no other words, that the blow which he had delivered on Howen's law had been sufficiently invocated to have carried with it falsal consequences. He said he believed that when is recently the place flowing, and that the concussion had been the immediate cause of death. Lavigne was also in much apprehension as to what would become a himself in connection with the fight, and how long it was likely that he would be kept in prison. Friends assured him that he would probably have no difficulty in obtaining his release after the usual formalities of the law had been complied with.

At 9 o'clock this morning Lavigne and his party were taken to the Third precinct station. A charge of marder against Lavigne was made, and the others were held as accessories. Later Lavigne was sarraigned in court, and was held in $1,0,000 bail. All the accessories. Refuree Duffy and the seconds. Consadine, Murphy, Jim Hall, Fitzpatrick, and Layton, were also held in $3,000 bail.

Corner Lawrason, assisted by Drs. E. Denegre Martin end John Lawress and a jury of five men, held an autopay and inquest at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The verdict was that death resulted from concussion of the brain. Corner Lawrason, after the inquest, said to a reporter of the United Prose that death was probably caused by Bowen's head striking the hard floor, for if it was caused by the blow his neck would have been broken. "Billy" Layton, one of Bowen's seconds, when arreated this morning, said that he had complained about the ring because it had no felt under the canvas, but that Bowen replied that it was all right, and he would fight any way.

The Attorney-General to-day notified the Auditorium Club management that the proposed fight to-night between Jennesy and Ryan could not take place, and that if necessary he would get out an injunction to prevent it. He also notified the Olympic and Auditorium club than on ore fights could take place, and that in necessary he would get out an injunction to prevent it. The management of the two clubs had not not not sake place and that if necessary he would not take place, and that if necessary he would not take place and and the would have been any centre of his life. He would have been 31 years old on Feb. 5. His funeral has been fixed for 10 o'clock on Monday.

Jack McAuliffe, who knew Andy Bowen very well, was asked for his opinion last night. He said: "I'm sure it would not have happened had the ring been properly padded. The accident must be deplored, for it's sure to have a bad effect on fighting sooner or later. I knew Bowen personally, and he was a great pugilist. But I can't see how they are going to hold Lavigne. It was an accident pure and simple, and could not be helped. In most every football game somebody gets hurt, and occasionally some one gets killed, too. I don't see where they can lay the blame. I hope everything smoothes over all right, for Lavigne is fast nearing the top, and must be regarded as a dangerous competitor for any light weight to go up against."

WANTED TO ROB JACK M'AULIFFE. But After Several Drinks the Fellows Gave

It Away, and a Fight Followed. There was a rumor in sporting circles vester-day to the effect that Jack McAuliffe had been sessuited in Brooklyn and had indulged in a rough and tumble fight. THE SUN reporter got the following facts last night from McAuliffe: On Thursday afternoon McAuliffe, it is said, came over to this city from Brooklyn on busi-ness. When he left home he had $1,500 in his clothes which he intended to invest in a race horse. On his way to the bridge he was joined by Eddie Stoddard, his friend, and Vice-President of the Atlantic A. C. of Coney Island. They remained in this city a little while, returning to Brooklyn in the evening and early Friday morning they entered a saloon on Washington street.

They met there two stalwart fellows and an-They met there two staiwart featows and another man leaning against the bar, drinking. As soon as the big men saw Jack, it is said that they rushed over to him, and grasped him familiarity by the hand, asying that they were friends of Jack Dempsey and were glad to see him. Meauliffe replied that he was pleased to see any friend of Dempsey, and invited them to have a drink.

friend of Dempeey, and invited them to have a drink.

After some talk and several drinks, the big men, so the story goes, became intoxicated, and one of them informed McAuliffe that their scheme had been to take him home and rob him of every cent he had. Jack quickly told the fellows if they didn't get out of the place he would punch them, in spite of the fact he carried one arm in a sling. There was a fight right off, and the big men rushed into the street followed by McAuliffe and Steddard. Stoddard caught one of them and smashed him on the mouth, knecking him down. The other fellow then hit Jack, and the latter rolled upon the pavement striking his injured arm and breaking the plaster cast which held the bone in place. McAuliffe, enraged with pain, quickly arose, and followed by Stoddard ran after the fellows, but they got away. McAuliffe says that the men are two well-known crocks and "wire tappers," and that they meant to "do" him, Dr. Hughes reset the pugilist's arm yesterday.

WING SHOTS AT LABORMONT. I. T. Davenport Rents George Work in the Big Contest of the Bay.

There was some clover sweepstakes abooting at Larchmont yesterdar, and while the fields, as a rule, were not large, some of the best of the amateur wing shots took part, including such men as George Work, Fred Hoey, Capt. A. W. Money, Fred G. Moore, L. T. Davenport, and J. K. Palmer. The latter, who is rapidly coming to the front as an expert, either won or divided the money in five out of the eight sweepstakes. The star event of the day, however, a twenty-five bird affair, went to L. T. Davenport, who killed 24 out of 25 birds. George Work killed the same number, but lost the match by one bird on the shoot off.

The shooting opened with a handleap sweep at five birds. Hoey, Moore, and Palmer made a clean score. On the shoot off Palmer won. The second event, which was known as a star sweep-stakes at six birds, the shooters having the right to enter again on paying a penalty ranging from $1 to $3, went to Fred Hoer, who killed ten straight. A miss and out affair followed, and, after killing four birds each, Hosy and Palmer agreed to divide. The fourth event, which was held under similar conditions, resulted in a tie between Work and Palmer.

The fifth event was for a $100 silver trophy.

The fifth event was for a $100 silver trophy. $23 entrance fee, at 25 birds. Davenport was the first to miss, on his seventh bird. From here out, however, he killed every bird, winding up with a record of 24 killed. Work also shot in great form, only losing his thirteenth hird, which dropped dead out of bounds. On the shoot off at five birds Davenport wen. Capt. Meney was third, with a record of 23, his thirteenth and twenty-fourth birds dropping dead outside of the boundary.

The sixth event was a miss and out sweepstakes, which was divided between Messra. Palmer. Hoey, and Moore, each killing nine. The seventh event was also divided between three men, the fortunate shooters this time being Messra. Paimer, Hoey, and Work. As there were so many ties in the next sweep, it was agreed to decide the eighth and ninth together. Work won by killing fifteen straight. Summary: Handicap sweepstakes, $5 entrance, at 5 birds.

LONDON, Dec. 18.-The meeting of the Royal Yacht Squadron was called to order at Mari-borough House at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon Among those present were the Prince of Wales Lord Dunraven, Sir Charles Hall, and Mr. Richard Grant. The meeting lasted half an bour, adjourning at 4 o'clock. Nothing was settled in regard to the questions concerning a The above statement was obtained from Secretary Richard Grant as he was leaving Mari-borough House with Lord Dunraven immediately after the meeting, and it is authoritative It is understood, however, that although no final action was taken Secretary Grant telegraphed to the New York Yacht Club that the ablegram received by Lord Dunraven on Dec. 10 had been brought before the flag officers of the Royal Yacht Squadron and must now be submitted to the club. If the challenge should be accepted and the oup should be won by the challenger, he added, the squadron would not Semand the cup in case of failure to make a satisfactory agreement as to its receipt.

An irresponsible news concern spread the report that the meeting in question could not be held to-day, as the Prince of Wales was preaiding at a meeting of the Duchy of Cornwall officials in Mariborough House. In fact the Prince never presides at the meetings of the officials, and the meetings are never held at Marlborough House, but at the offices of the Duchy, Buckingham Gate.
The United Press was informed this morning that the meeting between Lord Dunraven, the Prince of Wales, and others had been arranged, and later received a despatch from Cowes, saying that Secretary Grant was attending such a meeting. The United Press correspondent went to Mariborough House, where he saw the editor of the Field, who had been informed by Lord Dunraven that the conference with the Prince was to be held there.

The fiction of the Duchy of Cornwall meeting was based evidently on the fact that Sir Charles Hall, Attorney-General for the Duchy, was seen at Marlborough House this morning. Sir Charles is a special friend and confidential adviser to the Prince, who entrusts to him many of his private affairs. The Duchy of Lancaster is in no way responsible for their associations.

The opinion is definitely fixed in the yachting circles that the failure of the Squadron to take circles that the failure of the Squadron to take action in regard to the America's Cup at to-day's special meeting is due to the fact that the Prince of Wales was unwilling to take the responsibility of declining to accept the custody of the cup under the conditions of the deed of gift. It is believed that the general meeting of the Hoyal Yacht Squadron, which will take place on Dec. 20, will reject the terms proposed by the New York Yacht Club.

Lord Dunraven, in an interview this morning, reiterated the statements contained in his interview with a Field reporter yesterday, which were cabled exclusively by the United Press. He was anxious, he said, that any kind of a race be arranged to take place in America that would be possible. Upon the receipt of the acceptance of his challenge he would begin the building of a new yacht forthwith.

Lord Dunraven yesterday received a cablegram from H. Maitland Kersey in New York, calling attention to a cable message of August, 1880. His lordship says he has not the slightest deat to what it refers.

All pegotiations between the New York Yacht

All negotiations between the New York Yacht Club and the Royal Yacht Squadron, looking toward a cup race in 1895, are now thought to be at an end. The following cablegram was received yesterday from Secretary Richard Grant of the Royal Yacht Squadron and posted on the New York Yacht Club's bulletin board:

While the members of the Cup Committee who were seen did not care to express any positive opinion in the matter until after the committee acts on it to-morrow, it was evident that they thought that there was little chance of a race now. Secretary Canfield, when asked if any answer would be sent to Mr. Grant's despatch, said: "No, the committee will not take any action until Monday."

Superintendent Oisen of the New York Yacht Club apparently voiced the general sentiment among the members when he said:

"There is a good deal of quibbling before a plain 'Yes' or 'No' can be had from English yachtsmen. The main issue must be promptly met before any new conditions are made. If the matter is not settled soon I should not be surprised to see all the concessions made withdrawn and the exact details of the deed of gift insisted on. Now that every concession suggested by Lord Dunraven, except the proposed change of course from New York waters, has been granted, I fail to see how the Englishmen can honestly refuse a race simply because the New York Yacht Club will not yield on the deed of gift question.

a race simply because the New York Yacht Club will not yield on the deed of gift questien, it is not sportsmanilke to exact everything and rive up nothing in return. In my opinion there will be no race.

Club will not yield on the deed of gift question. It is not sportsmanilke to exact everything and give up nothing in return. In my opinion there will be no race.

Lord Dunraven's statement in the Field, which was printed in The Sun or yesterday, stating that he was anxious for any kind of a race in America, and that he no longer cared whether the race was arranged for the America's Cup or not, caused considerable amusement among yachtmen. As one member said:

"That is just what Dunraven and the Royal Yacht Squadron would like to do—ignore the America's Cup. I am sure neither the members of the committee nor the club will agree to anything of the sort. You can take my word for it he will either race for the America's Cup and sign for it, if he wins it, under the new deed of gift, or he won't race at all. The Royal Victoria and other yacht clubs have offered international yachting trophies, but to use Dunraven's own words, the America's Cup still remains the blue ribbon of the ocean, and until some one wins it m a square and fair fight we can justly claim the yachting supremacy of the world, the Royal Vacht Squadron to the contrary notwithstanding.

"The present controversy is almost an exact reproduction of the trouble in 1889, when Lord Dunraven challenged with the first Valkyrie. At that time the New York Yacht Club appointed a special committee, and soon afterward they reported that the challenge was in due form, and recommended its acceptance. The same committee were appointed to conduct negotiations, with power to arrange the pre-liminaries and details of the race. Afterward there were rumors that Dunraven wished to back out and a letter was received from his lordship raising the question as to how the cup should be held, and proposing that any difference of opinion regarding the conditions of holding the cup he held in abeyance until after the decision of the match.

"Chairman Smith, in a letter to Lord Dunraven, dated May 29, 1880, reclied to this by saying: The New York Yacht Club cannot consent to sny a year, which owed their existence to the Larchnont Yacht Club, has paved the way for a new racing class next year, which is also to be built under the fostering care of that sportsmanlike organization. Some months ago a committee was appointed, consisting of John Hyslop, A. Bryan Alley, John F. Lovejoy, E. A. Willard, Harold A. Sanderson, and Francis M. Scott, to devise rules and plans for a 30-foot yacht, which was not to be a mere racing machine, but a boat which a man could cruise and live on when h was not racing. Yesterday the committee made their report, recommending what they call a 34-rater. Among other things they say

"It has been the aim of the committee to pro vide for the building of a class of yachts which would be fast, and at the same time be availawould be fast, and at the same time be available for cruising. We have also sought to give to designers and builders the widest intitude as regards type and form, consistent with what we believed to be the essential features of such a beat as it has been our purpose to encourace. Our report is the result of many meetings and the fullest discussion of all questions involved, and is concurred in unanimously by the members of the committee."
